

Hideaki Obane is a Senior Economist at the Institute of Energy Economics, Japan (IEEJ). He received his Ph.D. in Engineering from the University of Tsukuba. His research focuses on energy system modeling and energy policy. He also participates in the IAEA FRAMES Collaborative Project Phase II. Prior to joining IEEJ, he worked on the design and development of photovoltaic systems at Mitsubishi Electric Corporation and conducted research at the Central Research Institute of Electric Power Industry.

